Crop to Shop: Jimmy's Supermarket Secrets — BBC1, 7.30pm

We're starting to wonder if Jimmy Doherty is doing any work on the farm which made him famous, as he seems to be presenting documentaries for Aunty Beeb instead of getting his hands dirty. Here, he lifts the lid on exactly what it takes to get the impressive array of crops to our supermarket shelves, and probes the impact of shipping food.

Embarrassing Bodies — Channel 4, 9pm

You have to raise a brow at the folk who agree to take part in this show. They're too shy to tell their GPs about their ailments, but they'll confess all in front of TV cameras? Expect more blushes as the new series begins, and in the least cringeworthy segment, Dr Pixie and Dr Dawn take the mobile clinic to Cardiff to offer advice on flatulence.

The Persuasionists — BBC2, 10pm

Prepare to have your ribs good and tickled this week, as batty Emma goes on a health kick, downing new drink 'diet stuff' to stay slim. However, when she loses 30 per cent of her desk, she needs to shed even more weight to remain in proportion to the table. At the same time, Greg shamelessly hits on the beautiful Tamsin, and Billy's writers' block finally comes to an end.

Other Voices — RTE2, 11.25pm

The music show is back with a bang, if not a better slot in the schedules, as Annie Mac presents a series of intimate performances from St James's Church in Dingle. Among the barnstorming bands featured are Snow Patrol, Mercury Prize-winner Speech Debelle and Aiden Crowley.
