

Dingle in tune with Other Voices

MUSIC FANS - AND musicians - braved icy roads and freezing conditions to get to Dingle over the weekend, as RTE filmed the latest series performances for Other Voices.

Some of the biggest names in contemporary music headed for west Kerry for the ninth annual event which began on Saturday night and which took place in the 200-year-old St James Church in the centre of the town.

Due to its relatively small audiences - the church seats less than 100 for every concert - Other Voices offers a unique opportunity to see the performers in close-up, which is why tickets are like gold dust.

This year's performers included Richard Hawley, on his third visit, ex-Pulp singer Jarvis Cocker, Lisa Hannigan, Cathy Davey and The National, from Brooklyn in New York.

Performances began on Saturday and continued to Tuesday night. The performances were also broadcast live in high definition to bars around the town, including Benners Hotel, Foxy John's, McCarthy's, Currans', Adams' and Geaney's.

ENJOYING: Brian Lucey (Annascaul), Nicholas McLachlan (Ventry) and Elaine O Curraín (Dingle) enjoying Other Voices at Benners Hotel, Dingle, on Sunday night.
